Total filings were down by 43.6 percent during the week ending January 10 compared to the same week last year. Once again, the largest decline involved chapter 13 filings, which were down by well over one-half from last year.

Notable Case Filings

Three more notable chapter 11 cases were filed during the week, including the case involving the National Rifle Association. Their corporate headquarters is in Fairfax, Va., but the filing was made in the Northern District of Texas, the location of a newly formed affiliate, Sea Girt LLC. Prof. Adam Levitin of the Georgetown University Law Center in Washington, D.C., wrote a very interesting analysis of some of the issues in this case on the Credit Slips Blog.3

Since last March, I have been compiling an informal list of notable chapter 11 case filings. To get on my list, a company has to have had at least several hundred million in assets or liable, or been particularly noteworthy. From March through December, there were 166 such cases that filed, along with 3,057 related entities.

May, June and July were the peak months; nearly one such case was filed per day. Filings of notable cases were much lower from August through December. The main categories of these businesses were energy (51), retail (28) and restaurant chains (14), all of which were severely impacted by the pandemic. Two-thirds of the energy-related cases were filed in the Southern District of Texas.

Three judicial districts (Delaware, the Southern District of Texas and the Southern District of New York) accounted for more than three-quarters of the large cases. There were no cases filed in 70 of the 93 federal judicial districts.

4 A number of other groups also track the larger chapter 11 cases, such as New Generation Research (https://www.newgenerationresearch.com), Reorg (https://reorg.com) and Epiq, which partners with ABI to report monthly filing statistics (https://www.epiglobal.com/en-us/experience/restructuring-bankruptcy).

5 There are actually 94 federal judicial districts for the district courts, but the Eastern and Western Districts of Arkansas comprise a single bankruptcy district.
